

SHAMING NEW YORK SUFFRAGISTS' AIM IN GREAT PARADE

With Banners They'll Teach Lesson That State Is Far Behind the Times

New York is slow. That is the note which may be struck over and over again in the banner suffrage parade for Victory, which will be held in this city Oct. 23. Instead of repeating the old arguments for woman suffrage, the leaders will bring home to the voters of New York, in a thousand different ways, the argument that in, after all, the most telling manner, that votes for women is not a theory but a condition in cities, States and countries the world over, and a condition that never once has been changed after being brought to pass. "Women vote in this, that or the other place—why not in New York?" That will be the ceaseless inquiry of the column of marching women, 35,000 strong.

The banners of the first section, headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Woman Suffrage Association, will tell the international story of suffrage. There will be women to represent the six countries which place no restrictions upon woman's right to vote—Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, New Zealand and Australia. Next will come the National Chapter of Woman Suffrage, headed by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the National Suffrage Association. There will be a big banner commemorating President Wilson's newly won allegiance to "the cause."

There will be a banner for every State except the fourteen which deny all suffrage rights to women. Some of the other banners will read: "The Women of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Expected to Win Nov. 2;" "The Women of New Jersey expect to Win Next Time;" "The Women of Twelve States Can Vote for President—Why Not New York Women?" "Women Vote for One-fourth of the Senate, One-fifth of the Presidential Electors, One-tenth of the House of Representatives—Why Should Western Women Have More Power Than Eastern Women?" and, with mournful black added to the white and gold of the others, this banner will fly to the breeze: "New York City Women Have NO Suffrage."

The Empire State Campaign Committee's most important banner will read: "Vote for Amendment No. 1." There is another: "Remember, a Vote for the New Constitution is Not a Vote for Woman Suffrage."

The delegation from the Woman's Suffrage Party will display round banners inscribed "Women Vote in London—Why Not in New York?" "Women Vote in South Africa—Why Not in New York?" So on, to the limit of the geographies. Also, each borough of New York will carry banners showing which of its officials are in favor of Woman Suffrage. The next to follow will be the college women; then groups of twenty-six women to represent each of twenty-six different occupations in which women have made good. This is exclusive of the teachers, nurses and city employees, who will have larger representation. The last in line will be the Woman's Political Union. The color scheme of the parade will be white, blue and gold. The artistic side of it, as well as the one float, are in charge of Mrs. John Alexander, widow of the distinguished artist. To-morrow six recruiting booths for paraders will be opened in different parts of the city, in charge of woman writers. Artists will preside over them on Thursday, actresses on Friday and college women on Saturday. Capt. Cowdy of the Eighth Coast Defense Corps has volunteered to drill "awkward squads" of paraders at the Armory, Ninety-fourth Street and Park Avenue. The first drill will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 14, and all suffragists are invited to attend.

1,000,000 SCHOOLBOYS MAY BE TRAINED TO DEFEND THE NATION

Ernest K. Coulter Seeks to Incorporate National School Camp Association

This nation's schoolboys to defend the nation may become a reality, if plan which was today set on foot by Ernest K. Coulter, head of the Big Brother movement, has applied in the Supreme Court for the incorporation of the National School Camp Association, which he says proposes to call for 1,000,000 volunteers from the youth of America to train as the nation's defenders.

The plan is to co-operate with the army authorities and the National Guard and Government of every State. A course of study to be prepared by army authorities to be followed by the enrolled volunteers during the current school year. Secretary of War Garrison already has been offered several thousand young men for coast defense work next summer.

With Mr. Coulter in the application were Arthur S. Hoffman, editor of Adventure Magazine; Edward F. Brown, head of the New York School Lunch Committee; Dr. Charles W. Berry, State Sanitary Supervisor; William Heard, editor of Everybody's Magazine; and Charles W. Bond, Mr. Coulter's law partner.

Mr. Coulter said today the use of all armories in this State had been obtained for instruction and the organization of pupils in all New York schools, including colleges, universities, high schools and advanced grammar grades. This instruction will begin immediately. Drills will be held after school hours twice a week under masters from the army and the National Guard.

At the close of the next school year, members of the association at a camp established by the army will get two months' practical military instruction. It is expected this camp will be at Staten Island. All boys entering for the course must have written consent of parents or guardians and promise to give their spare time to the study for four years.

Cat Saves Overcome Fireman. MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 12.—At a fire here last night Orin G. Lewis, a fireman, who was overcome by the smoke, would have lost his life but for the cry of a cat. Unaware that Lewis was in the building, Chief Higgins heard a cat cry, and, going back, found Lewis unconscious in the darkness.

PLAN FIGHT ON WILL OF 'POOR WIDOW' WHO LEFT $100,000 ESTATE

German Nephew and Niece of Mrs. Diehl to Contest—Funds Left to Churches

In an effort to prevent nine church organizations from obtaining a large portion of an estate valued at $100,000, left by Mrs. Elizabeth Diehl, widow of a merchant tailor, who died last April at No. 118 East One Hundred and Ninth Street, her nephew and niece in Hamburg, Germany, have sent instructions to attack the will, which was made when the woman was eighty-four years old.

Mrs. Diehl, who was nearly ninety years old when she died, was regarded by her neighbors as a comparatively poor woman. There was considerable surmise when it became known that she had left almost all the estate which her husband had built up, her nephew and niece in Hamburg, Germany, had sent instructions to attack the will, which was made when the woman was eighty-four years old.

Another beneficiary in the will, C. E. F. Rosenbaum, pastor of the Reformed German Church of St. Ann, in Astoria, N. Y., who is now 84 and made executor and trustee of the estate. The organizations affiliated with the church are given bequests for various educational purposes and disbursements are given to divide the residue of the estate equally among nine organizations in which Mrs. Diehl expressed her interest.

She was deeply interested in church work and directed the establishment of the Elizabeth Diehl Memorial Fund in connection with the Reformed Church of St. Ann, which is in New Brunswick, N. J. Similar memorial funds were established for other institutions.
